RHODODENDRON FESTIVAL TO FEATURE MANY AREA ARTISTS . . .

The 2013 Rhododendron Festival will have many returning artists from our past festivals as well as new presenters. Cloud Farrow, who captures scenes of our area, will return with new works and prints of his well-known depictions of Mentone and the surrounding counties. His drawing of the Mentone Inn, the Wedding Chapel and the Mentone Springs Hotel are favorites among local art collectors. Local author Greg Starnes will be selling his just published collection of ghost stories: "Hollers from the Hollows" which highlights stories from our area. It is a thriller, and he will sign copies of the book. Dandelion Pie (The Clintons) will have a new collection of their handmade patchwork clothes and hats, as well as gypsy jewelry. Karen Duke will feature dolls, folk art and jewels.

A past favorite is jewelry maker Danielle Chandler whose brand is "Ferd and Bird". Her works are made of vintage jewels redesigned with a modern twist. Joy Walker sells genuine gem stone jewelry; Deborah Robison makes wire wrapped jewelry; Jewelry artists Lori Rhodes and Chris Patterson of "Artjewelz" will also have booths of treasures for sale. Chelley Walker

Artjewelz

Pottery by Shannon MacMichael

Davis is known for metal working and vintage silverware jewelry.

Pottery will be displayed by Carolyn Burke and Carol Roden (also fused glass), and Shannon McMichael will have functional pottery. Arlene McGowan returns this year with her unique artful baskets and gourds. Kathy Quinn has oil paintings, knit and crochet items and scarfs. LaLoni Cramer is known for her baby quilts; so bring your list of baby showers that need to be attended.

Linda Crowe Jarvis will have a good selection of her oil paintings. Trevor Hill is an acrylic painter and he will participate in this festival.

Carol Killian, Rene Lyons and Patty Shelton will have an eclectic assortment of items from glass art, baskets and photos. This trio of artists are certain to have something to strike your fancy in their booth. Charles Holcomb makes aluminum can airplanes, and he is always a hit at the show.

AND MUSICIANS

The festival committee has extended the theme of Mountain Traditions to the musical offerings. Starting things off Saturday morning the 18th at 9:30 and running til about 2:30 will be an authentic Sacred Harp singing you can visit during your festival rounds. This singing will be much like the ones that have happened in our county since 1844. Only the fashions have changed! Seventh generation singers and new singers alike welcome all, especially those whose grandparents sang this music. You are welcome to sing or just listen and you may come and go at will. The singing will be in the sanctuary of St. Joseph's Episcopal Church, behind the Mentone Inn with a lunch break from 12-1.

During the day you can hear performances by Chris Hale playing an old time banjo. Jean Ann Moon and the RSVP Dulcimer group

From The Editor

It's May! May flowers, May pole, Mayday, Mother, May I? No matter how you look at it, Mentone's exciting in May! The whole town is a'bubble with plans for the upcoming 31st annual Rhododendron Festival. So many people's time and talent are going into creating this festival for your enjoyment. You will enjoy the special efforts towards presenting authentic mountain music, crafts, skills, food and activities. Especially of note is an authentic Sacred Harp Singing to be held at St. Joseph's Episcopal Church just off the town square. For authenticity's sake, instead of a demonstration, you may drop in and experience the real singing whenever you like between 9:30-12:00 and 1-2:30. Come learn the basics of Sacred Harp singing Wed, May 15th, 6:30pm, Rock Ridge Retreat Center, Valley Head. All are encouraged to experience this rich local heritage which has now gained international acclaim.

Mother Nature is busy popping peonies out of the ground and sending shooting star columbines clamoring up the rocky hillsides. All around us Green has taken control! Every shade is creeping through the understory mirroring the canopy above. Skies are blue, temperatures are pleasantly variable and life is happening. The waters of The Little River are crystal clear and beckoning though still too cold for most to explore. The native azealas are making a fine display in the woods and the irises in the beds. Lilies of the valley are fragrantly wafting their hypnotic loveliness and our precious lady's slipper orchid is in full sail above the piney duff.

Best, Susan

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Just wanted you to know your paper is improving all the time. I enjoy the articles about people in the area and especially the "Chicken Lady." I, too, have chickens and am learning from her. Keep up the good work.

Mentone's Cookin'

The Festival committee turned to the local chefs to embellish this year's culinary treats in "A Taste of Mentone." Chef Ben Keener of J. Spencer's will offer his sushi "Zen bites" at the brow along with Hardware Cafe chefs Jessie Goggans and Thad Stevenson who will offer "backyard grill fare". The fire department will offer BBQ and the Mentone Market will have sandwiches. At the children's area in Mason Park the Valley Head Athletics will have kiddie offerings. On Friday night in the pavilion behind the Mentone Inn, One World Adventure will offer a fund-raiser fish fry with slaw and hush puppies and desert. The bonfire will be lit after dinner and Curtis Strange will play guitar and sing, and then folks are encouraged to break out their instruments for a picking. On Saturday night, The Wildflower Cafe will host a pig roast with music, also in the pavilion. Be sure to visit our local eating establishments as well.

By Susan Cherones

will play mountain dulcimers and there will also be a special presentation of hammered dulcimer music by the editor of Dulcimer Player News Magazine, Dan Landrum, whom we are honored to host. The Moon Lake Elementary Chorus will sing and 4 in Accord will offer gospel singing. Barry Crow will oversee a community hymn singing. Glen Fletcher of Dalton will play bluegrass. Bramble Rose is a mixed old time string ensemble featuring mandolin, dulcimer and guitar. Pickett's Charge, the award winning Fyffe High School String Band, will knock your socks off Saturday afternoon at 4 on the brow and the festival will close Sunday afternoon with the Lookout Mountain Strummers, our own Mentone dulcimer players. Throughout the festival, there will be Jam Sessions at Log Cabin Village, Kamama's and The Crow's Nest. Bring your instruments and join in!

Mentone Matters

By Mayor Rob Hammond

During the February council meeting a committee consisting of the mayor, the police chief, council member Gerald Bailey, and council member Ray Padgett was given the assignment of presenting to the full council guidelines for the use of Brow Park and Mason Park for festivals and large groups. The committee met at Town Hall Saturday, February 23, 2012. The committee reported to council at the regular March meeting and the guidelines were adopted by the council.

Hobson Kirby was elected by the council to fill the unexpired term of Gail Chambers.

Another Successful Community Clean Up!

By Lyle Nicely

Thanks! Thanks you to the volunteers that picked up loads of trash. Thank you to all the businesses that donated money or goodies. Thank you to all the volunteers that picked up trash all during the year. Thank you to all the people in the Mentone area that no longer throw trash on the roads! The roadsides seem to have less trash each year! I've never seen such big smiles from people picking up trash. They really smiled big when I brought the homemade chocolate chip cookies from Tom! Thank you to the people who brought food to the community picnic after the cleanup.

Thanks again to the following businesses:

Rhododendron Festival Update

By Ray Padgett

Springtime in Mentone brings long dormant senses to life and frees your spirit from winter's icy hold. Backyard gardens fulfill their promise and redbud, cherry, dogwood, and rhododendron blossoms showoff for the entire world to marvel at their beauty. Makes you want to dance around the Maypole. The Mentone Rhododendron Festival gives residents and visitors a chance, just before summer, to celebrate our time in this special part of the world by remembering and honoring Mentone's mountain heritage.

Festival plans now include a musical performance by the Moon Lake School Chorus and a Cake Auction to benefit Moon Lake School projects. Paula Easter will direct the musical performance between 2:00 and 3:00 pm on Saturday in the Mason Park pavilion. Again, there is no admission so come on out and enjoy the music. Tony Hendon will also captain boat rides from DeSoto Falls.

Karen Prestwood is coordinating the Cake Auction and Holley Midgley volunteered to be the Cake Auctioneer. All auction items are donated by local cake bakers and pie makers known for their extraordinary skills in sweetness creation. Cakes and pies should be delivered Friday (May 17) or Saturday morning (May 18) to the Mentone Market where they will be kept until the auction. If you have any questions or would like to donate your culinary treat for the auction please contact Karen at kdprestwood@dekalbk12.org or 256-635-8960.

A reminder, we still need volunteers to make the festival run smoothly during this busy weekend. No matter if you can only volunteer an hour or all weekend, PLEASE VOLUNTEER! You can contact our festival chair, Elaine Gauldin at (256) 634-0039, or by e-mail at jgauldin@centurytel.net,) or contact any of our committee chairs to volunteer.

A detailed schedule of events and festival layout and a list of Rhododendron Festival Sponsors are included in the center pullout section of this issue of The Groundhog.

LIBS FROM THE LIBRARY

By Linda Brown

This was the first meeting for Mickey Luck to preside as Chairman of the Moon Lake Community Library Board of Directors. He did a super, fantastic, wonderful job. We always begin our meetings with a report from last meeting and a report of our financial status. We approved the minutes as presented and discussed the money box a little. We now have to pay a salary for the librarian. This is a small amount but it is constant. Therefore, we find ourselves thinking of ways to be sure we can continue with the library services as they now stand.

We continued with the committee reports as this seems to be the best way for us to cover all of our needs. The report of FRIENDS of the Library was given. We decided to ask anyone who was a FRIEND in the last year or so, but not an active FRIEND now, to join again and send $20 per member to the address below. We are trying to think of ways to involve you more and to let you know that we appreciate you. If you know of something for us to consider, make a note of it and send it with your membership form.

Next on the agenda was our committee report designed to help us raise some money. After much discussion and with much regret, we decided to NOT have the Bridge Tournament on Saturday, April 27, 2013 as originally planned. We have encountered so many other events that are scheduled around this time that it seems impossible to get enough players to realize even a small profit. We hope to schedule another day to play Bridge before this summer is out. We are talking about a week day this time. Will let you know in plenty of time for you to prepare to participate if you play. Contact us if you want to get a table to play and we might not know about your players. We are saddened to have to cancel this event. It was something new, and we were looking forward to it.

Operation Paperback continues to be an ongoing project for us. We have a box for the collection of paperbacks to be sent to our military personnel. Bring them to the library and look for a white box which is decorated in red and blue. We carry them to the proper person when the box is full, and they ship them to the places which need them.

We are going to have a BOOKSALE at the Rhododendron Festival on Saturday, May 18 (10 am - 5 pm) and Sunday, May 19 (11 am - 4 pm). Look for a white tent, probably on The Square at the Mentone Inn. We will be with some other tents so you may have to hunt for us. We have some great, current hard-backed books. We have lots of paperbacks and a good selection of what we call soft backs, which have a stiffer cover than paperbacks and are usually larger. We have books on all subjects. We have a good selection of cookbooks and gardening books and many how-to books. This year, the Festival will be in downtown Mentone and in the Brow Park. Plan to attend both days so you can cover all of the events.

Our hours for the library to be open are: Tuesday and Thursday 3:00 to 6:00 PM and Saturday, 9:00 to 12:00 AM. Remember, no fine if you use the deposit box outside the door.

Write to us at: Moon Lake Community Library, PO Box 481, Mentone, AL 35984 and to be on the agenda for the next meeting on April 18, 2013 at 3:00 PM, tell Beverly or call Mickey Luck at 256/845-1282. You are welcome to attend our meetings. We appreciate your comments.

Rhododendron are blooming, easels are being set up, pots are being thrown and antiques are just getting older. Come see the stunning results at Kamama Gallery.

Kick back, relax and enjoy coffee, pastries, sandwiches and good conversation with neighbors and friends.

"Designs in harmony with nature and your needs."

This Old House: MERF Community House

My boards may be a little creaky and my paint a little flaky, but I am full of life. I continue to open my doors to the young and the wise so my walls are full of joy, laughter and learning.

Did you see the Moon Lake gym transformed into an elegant dining room and art gallery on Saturday April 6th for the most fabulous party? MERF's first Taste of the Mountain and Art Auction was a fun celebration with beautiful creations by volunteers and the school children. The decorating committee, headed by Joan Byrum and Frances Agee, created an intimate and inspiring atmosphere thanks to decorations from Camp Riverview and tables and chairs from Mentone Community church. The artwork by Moon Lake children was as good as the masters with a beautiful presentation. As everyone arrived and found their tables, you could peruse the wonderful artwork produced in Ms. Paula's art class and determine your bidding scheme. Kristen Emory, the fundraiser chair and MERF's Executive Director, started the evening off by introducing Ms. Paula and some of her choir members: Laura Boehringer, Mattie McGee, Rachel Collins, Jordan Henderson, Ally Smith, Madisen Smith, Carley Verdon, Candice Lawton and Ashelyn Watson. Their songs and bell work were a joy to watch. The finale was the cup song from Pitch Perfect by Candice and Ashelyn. Loved their monogrammed cups! Thank you, Ms. Paula, for enabling these students to perform in wondrous ways with their voices, with their hands and with their expression of beauty in artwork. Everyone began looking under their chairs hoping to win a door prize: the gift certificate from Orbix Hot Glass studio for an ornament making class or a "Leave Me In Mentone" fleece throw.

Then the local restaurants and B&Bs dazzled everyone with their culinary arts as many commented how fortunate we are to live in an area with such great food.

The unbelievable Tastes of the Mountain were:

Hardware Café: Pork, Chicken salad and Vegetarian sliders with homemade slaw and hummus

J. Spencer's: Zen Bites

Wildflower Café: Tomato Pie

Rusty Fox: Gourmet Pizza

Granny Hester's Sweet Potato biscuits with a new mini version

Roger's Real Homemade: Gluten free chocolate chip cookies, sweet potato muffins and brownies

Twiggs at Kamama Gallery: Roasted Red Pepper soup, scones and Momelets

Mentone Market: Cakes by Sandy Emory

Mountain Grove Bed and Breakfast:

Green Chili Cheese Egg casserole

Mountain Laurel Inn B&B: Decadent French Toast

With full bellies and open wallets, the art auction began with auctioneer Terry Hutcheson calling for bids and Kristen showcasing each piece and describing the artist and his or her enjoyment in creating their painting. Pictured are the ten pictures auctioned off that evening. A big thank you to Keepsakes Framing in Rainsville for making beautiful artwork exquisite! There were also several unframed paintings that guests were able to purchase at the end of the evening. Amidst the children's artwork, local artists offered their talents with a "Leave Me In Mentone" painted gourd from Scott Thomas, a bottle cap creation from Tom Emory and a painting from the owners of Off the Boat Seafood.

The MERF board is ever so grateful for this community and all the many people that made this evening such a success. Thank you everyone who supported this event with your time and your talents especially our Executive Director Kristen Emory. Thank you for buying tickets, for coming to the event, for bidding on the artwork and for having a great time. Thanks to Ms. Wisner for letting MERF use the gym and supporting all that we do. Thanks to Bill Berry for producing a wonderful program for the evening. Thanks also to Ms. Paula and all the great artists at Moon Lake School. MERF's art program at Moon Lake School will benefit tremendously from all the proceeds. Don't miss Taste of the Mountain and Art Auction 2014 as it will be even better. Be sure to stop by MERF's booth at the Mentone Rhododendron Festival and see our new "Leave Me in Mentone" fleece throw that will be perfect on your porch for those cool summer nights or purchase a t-shirt and cap to support all of MERF's programs. Life in Mentone is good.

MERF: Mentone Educational Resources Foundation is a local non-profit with the mission "To enrich the learning and living of the community by identifying needs and coordinating resources." If you would like to support our programs, tax-deductible donations can be mailed to POB107 Mentone, AL 35984 or contribute online at www.crowdrise.com/MERF.

See photos of some of the budding artists from this event on page 24.

Coming To Mentone

By Holley Midgely

My mother first brought me to Mentone in the late 1940s, before I was born. Really. Laying there in the warmth of my womb/room, having fetal thoughts, putting on baby fat and preparing for my coming out party, I thought, "Hey! This Mentone place is okeedokee in the extreme. Think I'll live here someday." So now I do.

Just kidding about the fetal memories. The truth is I really don't remember exactly when it occurred to me that when one eventually reaches a certain age, one can decide for oneself where one will live. But it did, and here I am. The route here was long and the sideshows were many, but here I am!

Growing up in Gadsden and later Auburndale, Massachusetts, my thoughts were never far from Lookout Mountain. I believe that even from my earliest days as a full time fetus I must have begrudged every moment I spent somewhere other than my beloved Mentone. A few years before I was born my grandfather Charles Shepard and four other Gadsden businessmen had purchased the property at Mentone's Moon Lake from the estate of Martha Berry, the legendary educator from Rome, Georgia. My little brother Shep and I spent whole summers at the lake as we were growing up. I remember eating Eskimo pies at Bailey's Grocery, and drinking the once-a-day permitted coca cola as we built our tree fort in the woods. I remember jumping off the impossibly high, not to mention impossibly rickety, diving platform at DeSoto Falls. And eating peanut butter and banana sandwiches on float trips on the river. Tom and Huck : eat your hearts out.

While the wage earning men in the family would commute down to Gadsden to work, we'd stay here, day after idyllic day, fishing, swimming in both the lake and the Little River, playing with Max and Roberta Cash's kids, and later Dwight and Nelson Stallings, and doing all the little boy things that little boys do. The good news is that no one was killed or badly injured. That is, if you don't include the broken arms, various contusions, or the nail I stepped on that was removed by old Dr. Quimby down in Valley Head. Down through the years there were Big Chill weekends too numerous to mention, honeymoons too numerous to forget, and even the conceiving of my son, all in Mentone. Then, finally, mercifully, after 17 years as the executive vice president of the Alabama Academy of Family Physicians, I finally gave up the flatlands forever and moved here 5 years ago. This is called living the dream, my friends.

Out of mercy for you, gentle reader, I will forgo the usual prattling on about the gorgeous scenery, mild winters, temperate summers, magnificent and abundant wildflowers, blah, blah blah that are the acknowledged attractions of the Mentone area. We all know them well.

Let me just say instead that I firmly believe I have rhododendron and mountain laurel pollen (acquired as a nature loving fetus) coursing through my circulatory system in such abundance that Mentone is part of me down to the molecular level.

Over my lifetime I have lived in more than a dozen towns and cities and in almost 40 different houses. I've been married an astounding number of times. I earned two college degrees, raised or helped raise 4 kids, worked for half a dozen companies and organizations, broke an arm another couple of times, and traveled to 10 or 12 foreign countries. But during all that coming and going, there has been one constant in my life: Mentone.

It's time for me to absquatulate for now, but when it is eventually time for me to punch my time card for the last time, just cremate me and sprinkle what's left on the waters of Moon Lake. I want to end up where I started.

To Know Silence

*"I have known the silence of the stars and of the sea,
And the silence of the city when it pauses,
And the silence of a man and a maid,
And the silence for which music alone finds the word,
And the silence of the woods before the winds of spring begin..."*

This is the beginning of a poem by Edgar Lee Masters, the poet best known for "Spoon River Anthology." It's a long poem, seventy lines, and is the one I chose to memorize as part of an eleventh grade English class assignment. All of my classmates selected poems of four to fourteen lines, but I was so moved by Masters' poem that I had to learn it, to contain it in my mind. I'll never forget the ease of memorizing it, or the lack of nervousness when presenting it. I was sixteen years old and had already learned the importance of silence, the need for it in my life.

When I speak of "silence," I realize that I am thinking primarily of the absence of spoken language, of words that convey emotions or ideas, of words we share with each other as we speak and tell our stories. But there is more to silence than the absence of spoken words. It goes to the heart of things, to the deepest core of our being. In silence we learn who we are. Another line in Masters' poem says "and I ask, for the depths, of what use is language?"

Some of my deepest joys have come in moments of absolute quiet. As a young teen, I would spend long summer afternoons reading on the big porch that surrounded my house. Daddy and I would often sit together on the porch, and he'd tell stories; or we'd talk together but as often as not, we'd just sit together in quiet stillness. In the cooler evenings, I'd sit alone with the music of Brahms and a stack of science fiction books, in a dark room lit by a single lamp.

As an adult it became harder to find quiet times. College was demanding, not only academically, but also in the personal swirl of new relationships and campus activities. When I attended the University of South Carolina in Columbia, one of my fears was that as a dorm resident I'd be unable to find the stillness my spirit needed. But my roommate, a perky nursing student, had a boyfriend in her hometown, and every single weekend she was off for two days. I had the room to myself and loved the quiet Sundays when I'd read the paper, walk to a nearby art gallery for an afternoon concert, or just sit by the duck pond and scatter crumbs to the fat fowl.

Hardest of all was marriage, when suddenly someone was there ALL the time. And as a new instructor at LSU in Baton Rouge, I had so much work it was almost impossible to find time for stillness. I'd set the alarm for 4 AM, not to get up and grade papers, but to sit by the window, write in my journal, watch the sun rise, listen to the sounds of birds waking to the day.

Over the years I've had a number of friends for whom silence was the worst thing in the world. Some would fill the spaces with long monologues or pepper me with questions, thus avoiding the dreaded empty spaces in conversation. Once someone asked me how I could just SIT, unmoving, quiet, not even reading. There's no real answer for that, but I know that there are classes now that try to teach people how to do just that. I think it's in the silences between people that friendship really begins. Sure, we love to ask questions and talk about feelings and ideas and possibilities, but for me the best moments in friendships have been times of just sitting together, sharing the quiet, feeling no need to talk. Some of the sweetest times I've shared with my husband Wayne are moments of absolute quiet – sitting on our porch, watching sunlight change the patterns of light and shadow in the woods, or walking together on a beach while waiting for sunset or sunrise.

By Jane Faile

I know that for me (and I think this is true for many people) it is in silence that I can hear the voice of God. In stillness I "hear" my heartbeat and the passage of breath in and out of my lungs. Then other sounds emerge: a breeze stirs the leaves of the trees, goldfinches call to each other, a train whistles in the valley, a dog barks. All of these things create the fabric of quiet in which Spirit dwells. And I feel such gratitude that no language can speak.

Mentone in May

Spring has Sprung! And I, for one, love Mentone in May! Birds are singing, sun is shining, flowers are blooming and gardens are being planted! We all know that it is almost time for our famous Rhododendron Festival! Mentone simply glows in May! And speaking of gardens, if you are wondering what to plant, here is a short list of perfect May, direct sow vegetable seeds. Bush and pole beans are great, and if you use a continual 7-10 day sowing method, you will have a long lasting supply of beans coming up in increments instead of rows and rows all at once! Beets, carrots, corn, cucumbers, peppers, squash, tomatoes and melons are also ready to be sown! Cabbage is perfect too, just remember to fertilize and water them when heads begin to form! And if that's not enough, herbs like Basil, Thyme, Oregano, Sage and Dill are ready for planting too! We do a "family garden" at my parents house. Everyone chips in on planting and gathering. I love canning with my mom! Let's not forget Mother's Day! Show your Mom some appreciation, gratitude and love on May 12th! I love you Mom!

May is also known for many National Food Holidays such as National Asparagus Month, National Salad Month and a host of others. My favorite two are National BBQ Month and Burger Month! We all get out the grills and fire them up about now, right? And nothing says Spring or Summer like walking outside and smelling someone's BBQ going! I wish you all a very Happy Spring and Bountiful Garden!

Grilled Pork Ribs with Balsamic Glaze

Okay, personally, I like to boil my ribs for about 10-15 minutes before I grill them because I find they are more tender. Of course, you don't have to. Preheat grill Med-High. While that's working, simmer 3 tbsp. balsamic vinegar, 1 tbsp. brown sugar and 1-2 tbsp. water, just until reduced and thickened. Glaze one side of your ribs and place that side down on the grill, then glaze other side. Cook about 5-6 minutes on each side, maybe a bit longer if you don't boil them. You can glaze them as many times as you like while grilling! Enjoy May and love your mother! Happy Cooking! Angie

Sage Advice - Growing Sweet Taters

By Ginger Beshears

I've been gardening organically in Shinbone Valley (that's on the east side of Lookout Mountain, about 12 miles from Mentone) for about 19 years now. It's a passion born in me I think and nurtured by my parents, my Mother loving flowers and my Dad good, homegrown, Southern vegetables. Daddy grew most of our food every summer as well as about an acre of golden nugget sweet potatoes that he sold for extra mad money to local grocery stores and anyone lucky enough to put their order in early. He first came upon the golden nuggets at Bonnie's Plant Farm near Eufaula, AL, around 1970. In 1994, Daddy overnighted a package of "slips" to me and every year since I have saved seed potatoes and grown the golden nuggets here in Shinbone Valley. I will bed my seed taters on 4/14 and look for the "slips" to poke through the earth about 2 weeks after that. Then, when the slips are about 4 - 6 inches tall, I'll pull them off the seed potatoes, hoping to get at least a couple of small roots with each slip and set them out in a row about 16 inches apart. Towards the end of October, I'll dig the hills of golden nuggets, let them cure in boxes for around three weeks, then bake the first pan of them and enjoy along with pinkeye purple hull peas, collard greens, homemade pickled beets and cornbread from fresh ground corn. It really doesn't get any better than that for a fall meal. And the next morning, slice a baked sweet potato crosswise, brown on both sides in an iron skillet and serve with over light yard eggs and cornbread toast topped with homemade blueberry jam. Simply delicious.

The Spring

By Doug Kiker

Remember the spring?
You see, that’s the thing
Not the season, but a place.
Sure, I can see it on your face.
Almost everyone in the South
When the truth comes out of his mouth Knows a little something he wishes wouldn’t come out.
But there is a catch - Seems like everybody, women and men, has something they just can’t keep in.
Maybe that’s true about the spring with its logs and turtles and frogs.

I don’t mean the spring with its babbling brook
But with water to drink and clean and cook.
Getting water from the spring was quite a pill.
‘cause every spring was way down under a hill.
And if the truth be known, right beside a still.
Anyway, that’s neither here nor there.
That’s what’s known as splitting a hair.
Every evening just before sundown
It was my job to fetch the water- sometimes round after round.
The water’s color was mostly brown
Stained with leaves and roots and things under the ground.
Approaching the spring alarmed a number of animals

some of which were larger mammals, but mostly frogs.
Sometimes a coyote or stray dog
The coyote and dog ran away,
But the frogs were there to stay.
Jumping in the spring for anyone to see
And do you know- wher a frog jumps he has to pee!

When We Were Wee

By Larry Smalley

I have always said we should talk to our elders before it's too late. I had the honor to sit down with a long-ago Mentone resident, Mrs. Bama Culberson. I sat down with Bama at her 90th birthday party. I sat and listened to an amazing story of life and times at Mentone during the great depression. I was totally in awe of this great lady at how well she remembered her life story. I only hope that I do justice in the telling.

Bama Culberson was born Bama Brooks in Pleasant Grove on Sand Mountain in 1923. Her grandfather had brought his family by wagon from Oklahoma after the flu of the 1800's had taken most of his family. Bama's father was in diapers when they made the move. Mr. Brooks worked in a cotton mill in Gadsden and her Daddy farmed when he was older. Her mother loved Sand Mountain and wanted to stay, but during the depression there was no fertilizer and you could not grow crops without it. Mr. Brooks had a brother that was a preacher in Mentone and preached and prayed with folks in exchange for eggs, chickens and vegetables. Mr. Brooks was told to come to Mentone and cut and sell wood, that the people here had money. He loaded his family with his two cows, two horses and wagon and came to Mentone with no money and no way to survive. Bama was eight years old when she made the trip. They moved in a squatter shack owned by a mister Jones that was located where the old town dump off Cove Road used to be. Her father soon found out that there was no money here for wood cutting, and one of his two horses had already broken a leg and had to be destroyed. Her mother thought if she could make a garden, maybe the children could peddle vegetables and keep from starving. Bama remembers her mother putting fresh vegetables in syrup buckets and sending her and her sister out to sell what they could. She recalls her first sale was to a lady with a newborn child. She sold her carrots to cook for her child and collected ten cents. That child was John Jones whom we all still know today.

Here the Brooks were at Mentone living in a shack with four children with no job, no food, and selling a little produce when the children could do so. It came time to go to school and the four children walked from the shack to Moon Lake, and not wanting to go they hid in the bushes outside the school until the teachers had to go retrieve them. She remembers starting in the third grade and her teacher was Mr. Hicks. He asked the class to learn a poem, and she refused and was kept after class until he finally gave up and let her go home. Times were tough in those days. She remembers the speech that then President Roosevelt gave about good things to come and a chicken in every pot. Her Dad thought maybe they could get some food and possibly another horse to replace the one that had broken a leg.

Bama says her family moved nine times in nine years and struggled until commodities came about. They were so glad to get government food even if it was old and outdated. She remembers the first meat they received. It was a ham but when they cut it, they found it was petrified to the bone and had to be thrown out. They did however receive oatmeal, brown sugar and cocoa which their mother fixed three times a day and sometimes if they had flour would make chocolate pies.

As years passed, more children were born until there was a total of eight (five boys and three girls). In those days there were no doctors or medicine and when sickness struck, more often than not, children and adults died from things like pneumonia and sometimes a crippling disease called polio. Her Dad and one brother caught pneumonia and were dying until a neighbor lady doctored them with homemade cherry wine.

By this time Bama had lived all around Mentone but life was still very hard. When she was fifteen, her family moved to a big two story house that belonged to Kelly O'Rear. John O'Rear still lives on the same property. Her dad took a job working on building the road from Cloudland to Chattanooga. Bama recalls that was the first time she had ever seen a loaf of bread. Her Dad bought one and made sandwiches--she was fifteen. At this time there was a bus that ran to take them to school; there were then five in school. She still recalls the kindness of Sammy and Clara Cash and how they were always such good neighbors.

Another set of neighbors just down the road were the Culbersons who had a son named Benton. When Bama was seventeen she was walking to Bankhead church at night and Benton would walk her there and back because of darkness. They started dating and after nine months were married. She was eighteen and he was thirty two and a bachelor. Benton always followed construction and kept good jobs. In those days he was working building war plants. Bama recalls that all the workers slept in their cars on the jobsite. Bama and Benton found a one room place to rent for fifty dollars a month which was very high but they had to pay it. They went from that war plant to St. Paul Minnesota to another war plant. Benton belonged to a union and followed the work, which took him back to Birmingham, Alabama, to help build the airport.

Bama was pregnant with her first son, Lawrence, and stayed at Mentone with Mrs. Culberson. When Bama went into labor, she recalls going outside and yelling across the hollow for Clara Cash to come and take her to the hospital which was in Gadsden at that time. Clara came and drove her there. After the baby

Rhododendron Garden Club

By Linda Brown

“When the going gets tough, the tough get going!” This describes the members of the Rhododendron Garden Club of Mentone, Alabama. On April 9, 2013, nine of them answered roll call by naming a ground cover. After a short business meeting, eight of them went outside. I’ll explain the discrepancy in a minute. As a part of the arrangements to have their meetings at the M.E.R.F. Community House, the members have always agreed to keep the yard clean. Because there was a flower garden at the house when it was purchased by M.E.R.F., the garden club named the garden, The Heritage Garden. One of the ten meetings of each year is dedicated to cleaning this garden. This was what happened on April 9.

The fallen limbs and leaves were raked from around the foundation of the house. This uncovered many tiny, tender tendrils of flowers! We have an array of yellow primroses which came from the flower bed of Lillian Blalock. The gardeners cleaned the beds and made sure that everything was uncovered and ready to grow. Some of what was discovered included yarrow, daylilies, iris, sedum and a large rose bush in the side bed. A trillium had poked its head through the leaves under the rose. The members identified a lilac at the back of the bed. It had baby blooms showing, can Spring be far away?

Now to explain the whereabouts of the other member. It was me, and I decided to stay inside out of the pollen and wind. This combination is not good for healthy lungs and it seems that mine do not fit this description.

I had promised to update the scrapbooks and this seemed a good day to start. I retrieved the box of scrapbooks, books of minutes and other materials from the closet. Upon opening it, I found that some of the books had molded. I carefully cleaned them hoping that I wouldn’t inhale the spores of mold and mildew.

I found the date that the Rhododendron Garden Club was started but no more information. Years ago, all of the records for the club were accidentally destroyed. We do not have records before the 1980’s. I remember that some of the members at that time remembered some of the dates and names of charter members. I will look for this information later.

By the time the outside workers came in for lunch, I had five scrapbooks and various other memorabilia for them to look at if they wanted to. I shaped some photos to put in books later and packed everything back into the box. One of the members has a lot of recent photos and when she gets these to me I will make a new scrapbook of the last few years. I also need to find the last articles of the meetings in The Groundhog that are preserved in a book. Maybe I can find them and bring that up to date.

All in all, it was a very good day and much was accomplished, which can always be said for this club.

On June 11, 2013 there will be a Flower Show at the M.E.R.F. Community House in Mentone. This will give club members a chance to display their designs and horticulture as well as help some of those in Judging School with their need for points.

NOTICE: Next month’s meeting will be on Tuesday, May 14 – NOT the date printed in your yearbook. The plans are for the members to visit DeSoto State Park and maybe one other site. They will be told of meeting place by email as soon as it is confirmed. Bring a sack lunch including drink unless otherwise instructed. If you would like to make this trip with us, let a member know and we will get the information to you.

The Rhododendron Garden Club is a member of Northeast Alabama Federation of Garden Clubs, The Garden Club of Alabama, Inc., District II, Deep South Region and National Garden Clubs.

Home Sweet Hometown

There are some special perks to living in a small town. Kindness is one of them. All around us folks are making Mentone special. Here is a story about one of them.

The Hunting Horn

By Linda Brown

Where it came from no one seems to know. John and Mary Baty were doing some work on their bookcase and there it was. As soon as John looked at it he knew who it belonged to. But how did it get to his house? It was a hunting horn made from the horn of a cow. These are hollow and you drill a hole to put your mouth over; and, if everything works as it should, you can blow through this hole and the horn emits a sound to call your Fox Hounds or whatever dogs you hunt with. John is a fox hunter because; “Once a fox hunter, always a fox hunter.”

This particular horn had initials carved on the side, and John knew that they were the initials of the fox hunters in the family of Paul Purvis. All of them were dated, starting back in the 1700’s, and John knew that the next one should be Paul’s initials. John called me because the Purvis family had lived in the Mentone United Methodist parsonage at one time. He thought I might know where they were. I did not know but I knew of some people in Mentone who might. I talked to two or three of them and they told me some others to contact. We got the word out and a friend of a friend contacted Greg Purvis in Florida. In Greg’s words, “When I saw that someone in Mentone was looking for us to return a hunting horn, the hair stood up on my arms, and I felt the presence of my dad.” You see, Paul passed in April last year. Now it was Greg’s turn to have his initials engraved along with his dad’s information. Greg has moved in with his mom, Gail; and when he told her, she had the same feeling. They both have said by e-mail that this has brought a lot of comfort to them. John and Mary have shipped the horn and it arrived intact. Just imagine the feeling that Greg and Gail had when they held the horn which was held by their dad and husband and in Greg’s case by many of his ancestors.

John has left it up to me and the family to write a more complete history of the hunting horn and hopefully we can gather enough of the history (especially the story of how it got left in Mentone) to write another story of the Hunting Horn. Let us know if you can add any information.

Seeking Quality of Life

By Kay Kiker

My husband, Doug and I feel blessed to be residents of Mentone. We bought a century old farmhouse on the old Summerville Road in 2007, and we moved away from southwest Alabama where our family lineage goes back over 160 years. We do not have family ties in this region of Alabama at all, but we chose this area because of the beauty of Lookout Mountain and the quality of life it would bring to our lives.

In my search to find a new home, I looked at many properties in Cherokee and Jackson and finally in DeKalb County. Nothing felt like home until I searched around Mentone. When I finally found the old farmhouse, I sat on the back deck and felt completely at peace and knew instantly, this was the home we were meant to have. But to seal the deal, Doug would have to come and approve the purchase. It was a couple of weeks before he could make the trip to see the property. I had told him that it was completely up to him to decide, but in my heart, I was totally in love with the old home. I watched him carefully for any sign of displeasure or disappointment in my choice, but to my joy, he indicated his approval by characteristically raising his eye brows as he looked around which was a positive sign of satisfaction in the place.

The old farmhouse structure was modernized over the last century, but it was originally a two story dog trot house with an open corridor hallway that lead from the front porch to the back porch. Of course, at some point the open corridor was enclosed to form a formal entry and living room. The stone foundation came from an old school building in the area.

Doug and I restored two historic properties, an 1864 Victorian home and an 1898 commercial building that once served as an Opera House on the second floor. This experience will come in handy as we go about restoring our new old home in Mentone.

I will be writing articles about the value of “Quality of Life” and why Mentone is an exceptional place to live. My perspective comes from appreciation and thankfulness that there are still places like this in the troubled world we live in today. Mentone’s quality of life comes from many sources and a rich history of remarkable people who preserved traditions, historic structures and which welcome eccentricities of unique characters that abide and travels through this wonderful place.

In conclusion of this, my first article, Mentone has met my expectations of what a community may offer as a sign of quality of life. I shall attempt to broaden awareness of the many ways “quality of life” is nurtured in our little village. Who knows, our example may bloom as visitors begin to emulate our success in their own communities.

The Chicken Lady

By Kristen Emory

Spring Time equals landscaping, car washing, manicuring, pedicuring and chicken washing. Yes, you read correctly, chicken washing time. I came in my house carrying my favorite chicken, which we still call "favorite chicken." I informed my family that I was going to wash my chick in the bathtub. She needed to soak and it would be much easier to bathe her in the bathroom and I don't have hot water outside. My plan was not well received. My children started screaming, "chickens are nasty; they have mites, bugs; there is poop on her butt." I can handle this. This is my house. I clean the tub, and after all there is no shortage of Clorox. Then I hear Tom say, "No, Salmonella." Did I hear that correctly, NO? One of my few faults is that I hate to be told NO. So it's on, I start defending my plans of bathing my favorite chicken in the house. Guess what...I lost.

Let us get back to the main idea of this wonderful article. How to bath a chicken? If you Google "How to give a chicken a bath," there are tons of videos and instructions on chicken bathing. Who needs a book when you have Google. I went with the outside version since my family did not let me use the house tub. Don't tell my family but I did not see any videos that used their bathtub, and we will keep this between us!

I recruited my daughter, Saddler, to help me prepare warm water in a wash tub with dawn dish detergent. Favorite Chicken loved her bath. The warm water calmed her and she loved the bubble bath. Then we rinsed her in warm water in another tub, just like the Internet told me to do. The best part was wrapping her up in a towel and taking her inside. She and I sat on the couch with the rest of the family and watched TV. This chicken loves me and loves to be inside. She is the chicken that runs in the house whenever the door opens and hops in the car before I can get out. I was afraid she would get cold so I followed the Internet instructions and blew her dry with my hair dryer. This did not go over as well as the bath and towel but we clucked on through.

Favorite Chicken is now the prettiest, cleanest and finest chicken in Mentone. And very likely the only chicken to sit on the couch and watch an episode of Duck Dynasty with the entire family!

was born, you had to be taken home in an ambulance; but since there was not one in Ft. Payne she came home in a hearse belonging to Mr. Hoyt Wilson of Wilson Funeral home. She brought Lawrence home to Mentone where there was no power so even his bottles had to be warmed by a lamp.

Bama would give birth to three more children, and one morning after breakfast Benton walked outside and fell dead with a heart attack. Bama had no way of supporting the kids at home. While Benton was alive, for five years she had done housekeeping for the Lewises who lived down the brow. When her daughter, Melba, was born Mr. Lewis asked her to bring Melba with her every day. He had never been around a child. Mr. Lewis was one of the people who built the Hoover Dam.

After the Lewises, Bama worked in a lunch room and then took a job at the Men's Den in Fort Payne selling clothes; and with the help of Bentons social security they survived. Bama worked at the Men's Den for fifteen years or until she was about seventy years old. She then went to work for the council on ageing. The office, at that time, paired socks for a company in Ft. Payne. There were fifteen ladies that worked doing the pairing. She then went to the sock museum and stayed for another two years.

Well, Bama there you go. I hope I have done justice to a great lady in telling her trials during and after the great depression. If I have made any errors in the telling, I want to apologize in advance. Bama also shared memories of times like Benton taking her and her sister to see the old Hitching Post dance hall in Mentone, but in those days if you were married you could not dance in public. Wow, how times have changed. I really didnt know how I was going to tell her story, but now I think it was one of the most enjoyable things I have done in a long time.

Bama's daughter Melba has been a lifelong friend, and I want to thank her for the help in getting this story told. When you think your day is going bad think of what our forefathers went through just to survive-- and your day won't seem so bad.

Mentone Wedding Chapel

Nestled in the woods atop Lookout Mountain, near Mentone, Alabama, this quaint little chapel is surrounded by ferns, forest and flowers. The chapel is a scaled version of traditional Appalachian churches of days gone by. Stained glass windows filtering soft forest sunrises and soft organ music accent an ambience fitting the wedding ceremony. Inside wooden pews will seat approximately 60 guests.

Linda Patterson, owner of the chapel, said the idea for it began with a bell, and now that bell rings as newlyweds exit the door of the chapel.

Community Easter Egg Hunt

Most all of the Churches in Mentone participated in the Community Easter Egg Hunt--Moon Lake Baptist, Mentone Community Church, Mentone Methodist Church and St. Joseph's on the Mountain Episcopal Church. The Pastor from Mentone Community Church did the devotional for the kids before the Egg Hunt. There were more than 3,000 eggs hidden for the children of Mentone to find. The Churches provided hot dogs, brownies, cotton candy and lemonade for kids and parents.
