*A Publication of the Mentone Area Preservation AssociationThe DeKalb County Library:*A Piece Of History*Check It Out*By Emily Smith

Chris Wright, a Mentone resident, is the acting director of the DeKalb County Library. For the past year, he has seen tremendous growth in the Library with the circulation going from 80,000 books last year to a projected 120,000 books for 1991.

"We are in a five-year plan to bring the Library to the standard of top libraries in Alabama," he told The Groundhog recently.

The Library has already moved from ranking 38th in the state in 1989 to 22nd in 1990 and should be in the top ten libraries this year. The circulation numbers (books checked out) reflect the increased usage of the Library by DeKalb County residents.

The Library building in Fort Payne is 7 years old.

Rachel Manning, who retired as director in 1990, spent six years building the facility, from the planning stages to the actual construction and the opening. She came to the library after teaching English at Valley Head High School for many years and was instrumental in raising the funds for the new Library's construction.

"Rachel really built the Library," Wright said. "She gave us a wonderful facility with great potential."

One of the areas that Wright has concentrated on as director is the children's collection. Children's programs such as the Thursday morning story hour and the summer reading program are very popular.

"Children are the future of this library and we have gone over budget in buying new books for the children's section. But, we can see children coming in more during the school year for help on research papers and we know they are benefitting from the library," he commented.

Because most research papers must be worked on after school hours, the DeKalb County Library is the place students turn for information. Wright said that with proration and cuts in school system funds, school libraries are suffering and not able to purchase materials needed for students.

Through inter-library loans, the DeKalb County Library can request books and materials from other libraries in Alabama.

"This is a way for us to have access to all the library material in the state," Wright said "We can help kids get A's on their papers."

"Of course, that doesn't apply to students who start on their paper the night before it is due," he cautioned with a smile.

Two students who stood out in his mind last year received A's on their research papers. Both returned to the library to share the results of their work with the staff and to thank them for their help.

"One boy was writing a paper on earthquakes and I showed him a map of the earthquakes fault lines in DeKalb County. He was really proud of the 'A' he received. Another little girl who wrote a report on the Thompson's gazelle brought her paper to show us and we got a hug," he reported proudly.

The friendly atmosphere at the library adds to the increase in the Library's use and to the length of time library patrons stay at the Library. Wright says when the staff is busy they feel like a fast food restaurant.

"We give service with a smile and move as quickly as possible to help the next person in line," he said.

Even with state money for libraries tight, Wright hopes to continue adding new services and materials for the DeKalb Library in the coming years. Proration also effects money for libraries which are funded in education legislation.

Over the summer they installed a security device to help prevent book theft. Now as books are checked out, they must be demagnetized before the patron passes through the security gate and the exit door.

"It is hard to believe that people would steal library books, but it happens," Wright said.

CNN NEWS and other cable channels are now available in Mentone. Bill Kidder (left) and Gary Haas are getting good reception.

THE POST OFFICE

Another important event of the decade of the centennial was the move into a modern post office building on Jan. 1, 1982, a 2,320 square-foot building. First postmaster was Ed Mason, who had constructed a small building in 1888 near the site of the present Mentone Inn and beside a two-story building built around 1873 by H. B. (Harry) Gillette. By 1899 the two buildings were owned by the James Huron family and known as the Huron Boarding House.

Around 1902 the post office was moved to "The Mentone Store," present site of the Hitching Post, built by Guy Burgess. In 1930 Sam Graham and his partner Fred Huron bought the building, adding a room for a post office, the 1986 site of Sharon Barron's Gourdie Shop. Around 1926 the post office was moved to a small building just east of the Hitching Post.

When the town built a structure across the highway to serve as Town Hall, the post office moved into half the building in 1957. Here it remained until the new building was completed in 1982.

At the time Ed Mason was postmaster, the mail was brought up the mountain by horseback. During the '50s Arthur "Lightning" Goss was a carrier for the mail from Valley Head. An inspector for the postal service asked how the air mail got to Mentone, and the answer was "by Lightning."

Following Ed Mason the following postmasters have served: 1891, Stewart H. Congam; 1891, Harry B. Gillette; 1899, Lovena A. Huron; 1900, Harry B. Gillette; 1901 Peter K. Smith; 1902, Guy A. Burgess; 1907, Fred Huron; 1909, James Huron; 1914, Grace V. Grew; 1918, Miss Jimmy M. Brown; 1920, Mary Maude Brown; 1926, Stella M. Shigley; 1934, Hal Howe; 1934, Evelyn Jones; 1946, Eva M. Jones; 1948, Leland M. Cox; 1976, John G. Sterling (officer in charge); 1976, Benny L. Goss.

BUS 23, NOW LOADING. The first bus to leave Moon Lake in the afternoon, loads up with kids of all ages. Al Blackburn is the driver.

Moon Lake Scores High Again

Moon Lake School scored highest of all county schools on the Elementary Stanford Achievement tests given to fourth graders last year. Principal Charles Bell reported Moon Lake's test scores were "astounding."

The student's scores were 73 for both the basic and complete score compared to the overall county scores of 50 basic and 52 complete. Matching Moon Lake to the state scores, Moon Lake came out higher as well. The state average was 45 basic and 46 complete. The next nearest DeKalb County school score was Fort Payne City with 59 basic and 60 complete.

Moon Lake Elementary School began classes Aug. 22 with over 100 students enrolled in kindergarten through sixth grades.

The school, along with other schools in DeKalb County will begin a breakfast program as soon as funding is approved by the U. S. Congress. The U. S. Department of Agriculture has authorized the breakfast program along with all other agencies involved. Once implemented, Moon Lake will be provided with much needed lunchroom equipment and remodeling.

New cook-top, ovens, a steam counter and a stainless steel food preparation table will be added to the lunchroom.

Bell hopes final approval will come early this fall so the breakfast program can get underway.

"Many of our students leave home very early and sometimes do not have a chance to eat breakfast at home," he commented.

Again this fall, Moon Lake will take part in the "Apples for Students" Program. Food World and other stores in the Bruno's chain will exchange cash register receipts for Apple computers and software. The school received a computer, monitor, disc drive and several educational software programs last year.

"We'll be using the software: European Nations and Locations, Math Blaster, Designasaurus — a science program, Compu-Teach, and Once Upon A Time — a writing program, this year," Bell said.

Bruno's has received a "C" Flag for their contribution to improving the quality of education and also was named one of the 100 special Presidential Citations awarded annually to organizations that contribute in a positive way through the private sector.

There is one new teacher at Moon Lake this year, Melanie Roberts in Kindergarten. Returning teachers are Darlene Mosely, first grade; Christine Lehman, second grade; Bill Berry, third and fourth grades; Joyce Smith, fourth and fifth grades; and, Charles Bell, sixth grade.

Helen Sibert is the school secretary. Delight Pruitt and Cheryl Crane are the lunchroom workers.

Mentone Cable To Begin Service

Some Mentone residents are enjoying cable television service as Mentone Cable Company connected a few homes in a test area in August.

According to Bill Kidder and Gary Haas, the owners of Mentone Cable, they will be ready to connect some customers over the next few weeks.

"We hate to keep putting people off on installing their cable but, we want to give everyone the highest quality service we can," said Kidder.

Most of the area east of the Mentone Post Office, excluding Cove Road, will be ready for service during October. During October and November, Kidder will be working toward completing the system for other areas of Mentone within the town limits.

Mentone Cable has worked for over a year stringing cable lines and readying electronics and satellite dishes at the tower location.

"We have moved slowly," says Haas. "This way we can assure our customers that the quality of their service will be the best. By working the way we have, we have not tied up too much money."

When an area is ready for installation, residents will be notified personally. A letter explaining costs for the subscriber will be given to them. The total charter subscription package cost for basic cable programs and "Showtime" will be $16.95 per month. Subscribers must sign up within seven days of being notified to take advantage of free installation being offered to charter subscribers.

The cost of the basic package is $12.95 per month. "Showtime" is $4 more. Haas pointed out that "Showtime" is usually around $8 per month so Mentone

Cable is making it a special offer.

Cable-ready television sets will not require any extra equipment when the cable is installed. Older sets that are not cable-ready will need a special box for cable reception. The manual box will cost $1 per month if rented from Mentone Cable or, it may be purchased from them. Remote control boxes can be ordered.

Kidder said any questions about VCR's and how to program them for cable will be referred to Haas.

A telephone at the tower location has been activated to receive calls about Mentone Cable. There is an answering machine for messages. The number locally is 634-4242 or the payment center in Fort Payne is open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 845-9008.

Changing World

By Emily Smith

The world is changing faster than we can keep up with. That huge blob of area on the globe that used to be labeled the U.S.S.R. is now splitting up into smaller separate countries, each becoming independent of Moscow as they declare themselves independent from the Soviet, the ruling council. Even Russia, the "Mother Country" is moving away from communism.

Communism must have seemed like a good idea to the Russian peoples 70 years ago when it was touted as the panacea, the cure-all for countries long oppressed by the autocratic rule of the Tsars. All people wanted then was a better way of life, a hope for their future.

The communist system failed the people of Russia and now they are looking to the west for another example of government and one that has been more successful for many generations.

Not only are they looking to the west for an example of government, they are also looking for faith. The Church was nearly snuffed out during the seventy years of communist oppression in Russia in spite of the strong hold Christian Orthodoxy had on the country before that time.

One of the most interesting statistics we have heard recently is that in spite of communism, approximately 100 million people or 36 percent of the population of the Soviet countries are Christians. Now, according to Boyd Nixon, a missionary to Russia for Campus Crusade for Christ, the Education Ministry in Moscow has asked Campus Crusade to prepare school curriculum that will teach Russian school children about Christianity.

While our school children are learning where Latvia, Lithuania, and Byelorussia, young people on the other side of the world will be learning something even more important, Christian faith. This experience is denied U. S. school children while courts try to determine how to separate church and state.

This example should make us all question what direction we, a democracy, are moving in.

State Highways Will Upgrade

Congressman Tom Bevill said recently that a House subcommittee has authorized three Alabama highways to be upgraded to interstate standards.

The roads include the Birmingham-to-Memphis Highway known as Corridor X, Corridor V in North Alabama, and the proposed Memphis to Atlanta Highway known as the East-West Corridor.

"This is wonderful news. We have been working very hard to get these highways authorized so that we could bring them up to interstate standards," said Bevill. "The House Public Works Subcommittee on Surface Transportation today approved the Surface Transportation Act of 1991."

"This legislation authorizes $200 million for these Alabama highways, which the committee named as 'High Priority Corridors.' That means they will have the interstate standards," said Bevill.

The subcommittee approved $100 million to upgrade Corridor X to interstate standards from Corridor V near Fulton, Mississippi, to U. S. 31 at Birmingham. The portion of Corridor V from the Mississippi state line near Red Bay to the Tennessee state line north of Bridgeport was authorized for $50 million.

Another $50 million was authorized for upgrading the East-West Corridor along Route 72. "This is the proposed Memphis to Atlanta Highway. It is my understanding that the State Highway Department still must determine the exact route for this highway," said Bevill.

"Once this legislation is approved by the full Congress and signed into law, we will get additional appropriations for these projects," said Bevill.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Emily, M.A.P.A., and The Groundhog:

I just want to take a moment to say "Thank You" for your support of the DeKalb County Special Trail. It is only with the support of folks such as you that the trail will become a reality.

I believe the trail will become a reality by the end of next summer, and I hope you will join me for the dedication of it.

I'm sorry it took so long to get this letter out to you. The summer has been pretty hectic and is still going strong. It looks like we will have a good year in a year.

Once again, thank you for your support. It is always rewarding to have help from people close to home.

Sincerely,
Talmadge Butler

Phone Service Changes

The Mentone Area Preservation Association will begin circulating petitions this month requesting GTE Telephone Operations to include phone calls to Fort Payne under local service for Mentone, Valley Head and, Hammondville customers.

Homer Crow, MAPA's president learned of the petition process recently and said petitions will be placed in local businesses for phone customers to sign.

GTE took over phone service for this area from Centel on Aug. 1.

GTE Telephone Operations, the largest of GTE Corporation's three business groups, provides local phone service through 18.4 million access lines in portions of 40 states and two foreign countries. In addition, GTE Telephone Operations markets telecommunication products and services internally and supplies computer software and data processing nationwide. Revenues in 1990 totaled $15.4 billion. GTE Telephone Operations has approximately 114,000 employees.

Congratulations to Dot and Bill Blackburn, who have become great-grandparents, and to Martha and Hoot Gibson who have become grandparents since their son, Mark Gibson, and his wife, Jane, have a son, Mathew Blackburn Gibson, born Sept. 27, in Houston.

Larry Longshore was honored by being one of the teachers selected to go on a training trip to the Pacific Coast. They visited Washington State and studied the growth of plant and animal life since St. Helen's eruption. He reported it is growing nicely, but as they stood on the volcano's rim, they could hear rumbling in its depths. They saw the Rain Forest in Olympic National Park. They went to San Juan Is. and in Puget Sound and, while the tide was out, studied sea life; they also observed some huge killer whales. The object of the trip was to become familiar with different environments and, of course, teach it to the children. This twelve day trip was funded by the Lyndhurst Foundation of Chattanooga, through Chattanooga Nature Center.

The Sunshine Club met Aug. 22 at the home of Jean Jones. Karen Freeman presided, Ruth Pickett gave the Secretary's report, and Sue Cooper led the devotion. Others present were Gladys Cobble, Addie Hall, Bess Baulele, Evelyn Clark, Vernice Young, Geraldine Hawkins, Jewell Palmer, Billie Harper, Leona Chadwick and Elsie Brown and visitors — Sadie Cooper, Lily Bowden and Carmel Gilford. The Fair booth was discussed, and the picnic, which will be Sept. 14 at 6 p.m. The Camp Ponderosa Homemakers Camp was also announced.

The Valley Head U.M.W. met Aug. 27 at the home of Helen White with Melinda Adkins as co-hostess. Eloise Brown presided. Laura Margaret Allison gave the Secretary-Treasurer's report and Verna Livingston gave the Bible study. Others present were Mary Louise Holleman, Adelaide Biddle, Geraldine Hawkins, Frances Longshore, Frances Tate, Velma Hammond and Gladys Holleman.

Melinda and Jeff Adkins have returned home from a visit with Jeff's sister, Debbie Adkins in Los Angeles, Calif. They enjoyed seeing Malibu and Ventura, Universal Studios and the Dodgers game; they also went to the zoo at Titiana and Sea World at San Diego. They took a boat to Catalina Island and they went to church at the Camanika Christian Church.

Congratulations to Melinda Adkins for achieving her Master's Degree. She is now a qualified Psychometrist.

Gary Moore (who is Pastor of Lea's Chapel Church) and his wife, Michel, entertained members of his congregation, with a cookout and covered dish luncheon at their home in Mentone on Labor Day.

Sue and Foyl Cooper visited Howard Finster and family at Pennville, Ga., and Christine Burke at Tabor, recently. Randi Hawkins of Chattanooga, Robert and Gail Hawkins of Brewton, spent the holidays with their parents, Geraldine and Howard Hawkins.

Eleanor and David Carley, of Houston, Ansey and John McGinnis from Florence, S. C., and Tommy and Irma Allison spent the holidays with their mother, Laura Margaret Allison. We appreciated Ansey playing the organ so beautifully at our church on Sunday.

Gertrude Landers of Lookout Valley visited Oba, Talum recently.

Dot and Bill Blackburn, Martha Gibson, Ruby and D. M. Humble visited Mary and Raymond Crabtree at Caraway Hospital in Birmingham. Mary and Raymond are at home now, slowly recovering from a serious automobile accident.

Adela de Biddle has returned home after a vacation at Panama City with her daughter, Mary Lou and David Carmichael and their families. They stayed at Edgewater Beach Resort went Para-sailing (lots of fun), played Gooney Golf ate at Capt. Anderson's and the Treasure Shop. She celebrated her birthday with a party there, and returned to a party at the Senior Center in Fort Payne, then went to her brother Bill Ellis' (and his wife Frances) at Summerville, where she shared a birthday party with Bill. Now I call that celebrating a birthday!

We are very proud of our new church sign, sponsored by the Woman's Club and funded by them and the churches. May it direct some new members to our churches.

Residents of Hammondville and White Hall Communities enjoyed a sumptuous feast at the Armory building in Hammondville on Sunday, Sept. 1. The Elrods entertained with lovely music. We voted to make it an annual event. It's good to meet together and get to know your neighbors.

Our Town

By Linda Brown

Can you believe that summer is over? Everyone is saying how short it was. Of course it was the same length as any other summer. So why did it seem different? Maybe because it was so pleasant. The weather was nice, only one or two very hot days. People seemed glad to be where they were (most of the ones I saw were in Mentone). The only complaint I heard was that gardens grew so well everyone was very busy canning and freezing all the produce. A friend of mine once said, "All of this work interferes with my play."

The campers have all left Mentone and our own young people are back in school. Once again I urge everyone to drive carefully and expect those energetic youngsters to be anywhere at any time. Two of my grandsons recently learned a valuable lesson concerning how fast an accident can happen. They were driving a golf cart on their farm. The youngest one's cap blew off. He and the one driving turned around to see where it was. Wham! They hit a fence post. The post was broken and two boys were in trouble with their dad. No one was hurt and not much damage done, but hopefully they learned something that will be with them a long time. Let's be careful out there!

I am writing this on a cool, crisp and breezy morning. It looks like we are heading for a beautiful autumn. Let's all make the most of it — get out and enjoy life. So many things are happening and we all live so fast, that we don't stop and enjoy what we have.

The person-of-the-month is L. M. Flannigan. "M," as we all know him, is one of those special people who bring joy to all who know him. He always has a smile and a "hello" for everyone. "M" accepts life and people for what they are. He is probably one of the most ecology minded people in Mentone. He walks everywhere, to the store, to the post office, to church or to his sister's house. He takes care of what he has and the old adage, "Make do or do without," describes his way of life. If you need a smile and a wave, just speak to "M" and you're sure to get one.

Let me know if you have any subject you want to speak to or any announcement to make and I will try to get your ideas in the Groundhog. Emily would probably welcome a quest editorial once in a while.

Sparkle And Shine: The Gleam Of Gemstones

By Emily Smith

Prized for their beauty, gemstones have been mined since prehistoric man first discovered them. Rick Chapman, a Mentone resident and registered gemologist told Mentone Area Preservation Association members at their September meeting.

Chapman brought several examples of gems he works with to show the group and explained the natural process of gemstone formation.

Gemstones are classified by beauty, rarity and durability. Stones that reflect the "pure colors of the rainbow" are highly desirable and those that are hard to find and long lasting have added value.

Gemologists must learn the geology of the world to understand how gemstones are made. Chapman explained that the theory of plate tectonics has added to his knowledge of gemstone formation. Mountains, it is believed, occur when different geological plates crash together.

The Appalachian Mountains are some of the oldest in the world and are believed to have been 10,000-15,000 feet high when they first formed. Erosion has caused the mountains to be the height they are today — the highest peak in the Appalachians is about 4,000 feet high.

Lookout Mountain which is comprised mainly of sandstone was at one time on the bottom of an ocean and was pushed up above sea level by plate movement.

When the plates crash together, a large amount of heat and pressure is created. This allows a crystallization process to occur and over a long period of time, gemstones are formed.

Different amounts of heat and pressure can have different effects of a mineral. Carbon, for example, is the basis for both graphite, the softest mineral and diamonds, the hardest.

Gemstones are mentioned in the Genesis, the first book of the Bible. Emeralds were mined in Biblical times and in the late 1800's an emerald mine was rediscovered along with the tools used for mining in the Middle East.

Eighty types of gemstones have been defined by experts and about thirty are used in jewelry today. Some stones have increased in value as they have become harder to find. Moonstones are a good example. Moonstones were very popular in jewelry at the turn of the century and are very scarce today. Their value has increased almost four times.

"A lot of jewelry and gold is sitting in safety deposit boxes around the country," Chapman commented.

Not all gemstones have gone up in value, some have actually gone down. This applies to some cultured pearls.

Gemstone sources can be mineral as well as animal and vegetable. Examples of animal gemstones are those from shells, ivory and coral. Petrified woods, tree ivories and amber are vegetable gem stones.

Groundhog Travel Guide To The British Isles

By Emily Smith

Bookstores carry dozens of travel guides for tourists traveling to England: Frommer's Guide, Great Britain on $10 a day, A Guide to London and the British Isles. You can read them all only to find when you arrive, in spite of having a common language, you are really unprepared for the reality of traveling in this country.

First of all the travel guides do not tell you to take your own wash cloth or face flannel as it is called in England if you like to use one. They are not supplied in small hotels, guest houses or, bed and breakfasts. If you get there and need to buy one look at a drug store or chemist's shop like Boots. The Boots chain of stores are found in almost every large city in Great Britain.

When you begin to get hungry, the best place to eat a dependable meal is at one of the pubs. Pub means "public house" and they all serve ale, lager and bitters. Most are only open for limited hours and some only serve meals to children at mid-day. The pub nearest us, "The Ram," had some of the best food in the area. Their menu included sandwiches, salads, hot dishes like steak pie, fried fish, and lamb chops and, desserts or sweets.

Sweets in England are wonderful. We ate all sorts of pies, cakes and tarts. Two items that are available all throughout England that we don't see in the U. S. are double cream, a thick, heavy cream richer than the whipping cream here and clotted cream. Clotted cream has a spreading consistency and is what gives "cream teas" their name. At tea, you spread your scone, a sweet biscuit, with the clotted cream and jam. It goes perfectly with a hot cup of tea.

Another tip on food that is helpful to remember especially if you are traveling with children, know your potatoes. Baked potatoes are called jacket potatoes, French fries are called chips and, chips are called crisps.

One of the few places this rule does not apply is at McDonald's. The famous chain is selling hamburgers in England and is called "Macky's" by the young people there.

Our kids had to try "Macky's" and reported that it was almost twice as expensive as the U. S. I reminded them that it costs a little extra when you have to import all your ingredients from a foreign country.

Money was a challenge to all of us. It took a few days to become accustomed to the pounds and pence. Many items that cost one dollar in the U. S. cost one pound in the U. K. and, because one pound costs $1.65 or so, depending on the exchange rate, your money can be depleted quickly.

Another travel tip we learned the hard way is to have traveler's checks issued in pounds before you leave home. Then you can cash them anywhere. Some banks in England charge high fees to cash your U. S. traveler's checks and then don't give you the best exchange rate. Another alternative to traveler's checks is to use a VISA or Master Card for cash at a bank. Then you don't pay a fee for cashing a traveler's check. It is nice to use the credit card for shopping also, the exchange rate reflected on your bill is usually the best one available and you have a good receipt of what you have bought. That helps when you go through customs on the way home.

None of the places we stayed accepted credit cards for payment. We chose to go the less expensive route of staying at Bed and Breakfasts or guests houses. We drove from one town to another each day and never had a problem finding a place to sleep. Everywhere we stayed was clean and neat and our hosts were wonderful. The tourist centers located throughout the U. K. can book a bed ahead for you if you know where you want to spend the night.

Driving your own car in England is a challenge. My husband, Tim, did all the driving for us, assisted by all of us navigating. The cars and trucks are much smaller than those in the states but, everyone seems to drive very fast. The roads are well marked and even the roundabouts are not too bad. Roundabouts are found at most road junctions and send the traffic around a circle in the same direction with exits for the different roads. You have to yield to the traffic already on the round-about and be careful not to get stuck in the inner lane where you might find yourself circling for several times.

You also have to yield to sheep and cows, they have priority on crossing the road. One day on the motorway, a major highway, we noticed a walkway over the road and a herd of dairy cows walking slowly single file to their pasture on the other side. That was a first for me.

The best advice we got on driving was to "look right and think left." This is exactly opposite of what we do in the U. S. Tim said that left turns were the most difficult for him and he repeated the advice to himself at every intersection. When we got home we had to be careful to "look left and think right."

Another piece of "backwards" advice that never made sense to me, we heard at a cricket match. Cricket is a very slow moving game and not enough like American baseball for me to understand. The cricket tip is "when you are in, you're out and when you're out you're in." It was beyond my ability to comprehend the advice or the game and I enjoyed reading a book that afternoon. The boys in our family caught on to the game and even watched a few cricket matches on television.

We had the advantage of a home base in the little village of Holme-in-Cliviger. The vicarage where we stayed was spacious and well equipped with a kitchen and washer

On a recent trip to Phoenix, Arizona, we again fell in love with the west. Flying over the desert, we could see things blooming and growing because of irrigation. When the dry, parched land gets enough moisture, it seems to produce abundantly.

The colors of the southwest, which have always fascinated me, are so very popular with interior designers now. Again it was fun to see the huge Saguaro cacti—miles and miles of them. And this time they were blooming. Their blooms are not spectacular like some species of cacti, but are a lovely deep red right on the ends of those arms extended so high it was hard to get a picture of them. We observed birds either feeding, or making nests in the very top branches. It could be that they were getting water from the plant.

We had reservations at the Comfort Inn in Tempe, which is a suburb of Phoenix. It was a nice place, and right across the street was the Rusty Pelican — a very nice restaurant where we enjoyed one delicious meal. It was a bit expensive, and we tried others later.

We rented a car, and enjoyed touring the city. I had no idea it was such a huge place. Much of it is new, and sparkling clean. One whole shopping mall is built in the old style of Mexico, with thick walls of adobe in the reddish sand color. We made a video of it, and have not had time to look at it. It was beautiful.

Of course this area is in Indian territory — Navajo and Hopi. There is a large reservation right outside of Phoenix. I love their pottery, and the Navajo rugs. The only thing in good quality is expensive. Again the colors are very pretty — turquoise, rose pink to salmon, light blue, brown, green in all variations. And then there is limestone that is snowy white. Phoenix is surrounded by buttes, which look like some giant architect had placed his masterpiece all around the city. The colors are a beautiful terracotta, with soft shadows around and in between them.

One afternoon we drove south of the city, and found a group of rodeo people practicing their expertise at roping steers. This was fun, because I have never been to a rodeo. It was a good show and was free on this particular night.

On the weekend we drove north to Sedona — a lovely little village full of art pottery and other quality crafts. It would be a nice vacation spot. It is at a higher elevation and is a little cooler than Phoenix. There are lovely things here — something to suit everyone's taste. I love the paintings, so we went to the art barn and enjoyed both paintings and sculpture.

Early in the day we filmed the giant Saguaro cacti in bloom. And we toured the park where Montezuma Castle is located. It is a cliff dwelling, built by the Indians, of mud and logs. It is situated on the side of a very steep cliff, and again one wonders how in the world they got materials to the site. I suppose they used ladders and carried one piece at a time. This area is in a desert place, but Beaver Creek runs through the area, giving moisture for trees and some vegetation. We enjoyed the huge sycamore trees and Hackberry as much as the ruins.

We continued northward, through Coconino State Park, stopping at scenic overlooks to enjoy the view. The state of Arizona allows the Indians to sell their jewelry there, and we bought some lovely necklaces, made of turquoise and nickle silver. We knew these were authentic, and artfully crafted. One was a pinkish stone, almost the color of the buttes — and I forgot what it was. Maybe Rick Chapman can identify it.

We reached Flagstaff about 5:00 in the afternoon, got a room, enjoyed a hot bath, and went to eat. The air was cool enough here for sweaters.

After a good night's rest, we hit the road north to the Grand Canyon — on state 108. It was about eighty miles. We loved the scenery all the way. We went to the canyon in 1988, but Homer wanted to take the plane ride over the area and take video pictures of it. That was not my choice — I remembered the helicopter ride over Rio De Janeiro a few years ago, and it almost scared the life out of me. But I went and enjoyed it. The plane seated about 25 people, and didn't tilt the way helicopters do! And what an awesome sight it was! There are tall skyscraper looking peaks; giant cathedral like formations; high and low and in between. The colors are the many hues and tints of the southwest — just magnificent. We could see where the small Colorado River and the large Colorado merge. The river is a beautiful turquoise color and looks miles away. Our pilot said there are rafters on the river at all times. But I couldn't see them. He said the river can have waves as high as thirty feet after the snow melt in the spring. We flew over the north rim of the canyon, which is 2000 ft. higher than the south rim. The Spanish were the first to discover the canyon, but Indians have lived here since time began.

The Colorado looks awfully small to have cut such a giant chasm, but our pilot said it has taken million of years to do it. He said the canyon is cut one inch deeper every 500 years! This canyon is one of the wonders of the world. It seems to me that wonders never cease. So many things God created hold fascination for us that man cannot duplicate, even with all the modern techniques available on this planet. Now that we have viewed the canyon from the air, I would like to take the mule trail hike to the bottom of the chasm.

Somehow, in the west one feels close to the original Americans who still live in these desert climates. One wonders how they survived in the early years before the marvelous advent of man's invention of irrigation. Now there are streams in the desert that never were there, for many many years. It surprised us to see large cotton fields in Arizona, and that this crop is their main agricultural product. Again irrigation made this possible.

There are orange groves all around Phoenix, and palm trees line the streets of the city. It is a lovely city — very clean and fresh looking. It seems that most of the growth has taken place in the last thirty years. October is the month to buy wonderful produce there, because the summer months are a little too hot for growing vegetables.

Zane Grey's original cabin, where he lived and wrote so beautifully about the west was located near Sedona, and Tom Anderson, Homer's business partner, had told us to be sure to see this historic place. But when we inquired about it, we learned that it had burned recently. Perhaps they will rebuild it.

The summer has been a good one, with plenty of rain in our area. We have had a good vegetable garden, and have canned enough green beans to last two years, in case the weather does not cooperate next year. Our grapes, apples, and blueberries have produced abundantly. My pantry is bulging with jars of jellies, jams, pickles, etc. We are blessed with so many good things, we sometimes take it all for granted. It just makes us wish we could share some of it with those people in other countries who cannot grow foods like we can.

The days are getting shorter and cooler — my favorite time of year. Homer and I, and James and Betty Johnson, celebrated our forty-fifth wedding anniversary Aug. 30, and my birthday follows on the first of September. So this is always a special time of year for us — each year seems like a fresh new beginning. Now birthdays are more special than ever — I treasure each of them. Someone asked me how old I was and I hedged like my dear friend, Hattie Bruce would do — I told them I was born in 1925 and they could figure it out for themselves. Charles (Railroad) Parker has a birthday the same day as mine. And I just discovered that Bob Baty also shares our day — and he is one of my favorite people! See, some great ones were born on Sept. 1, just as the season changes.

Because money is tight, Wright tries to be a "creative manager" stretching every dollar the Library receives to three dollars.

"We do the best we can with the resources we have available," he said.

He credits the Library staff as being one of the Library's strongest assets.

"Each of us works 60-65 hours per week," he commented. "We come early and stay late to get the work done."

The staff includes Judy Dowait, Yvonne Toombs, Elizabeth Tucker and Wanda Dobbs. Judy Dowait is the bookmobile driver and works in the library also.

In the future, the DeKalb County library hopes to have a computerized catalog system. This would cost around $65,000. This fall, Wright hopes to offer a compact disc collection and a computer software collection for the use of library patrons.

Ongoing projects are the continued updating and purchasing of new books, books on tape, magazines, newspapers and videos.

The library welcomes donations of money, property and equipment which are all tax deductible. Wright said donations of books and magazines are also welcomed but are not tax deductible for the donor.

The DeKalb County Library was founded fifty years ago by Mrs. Mary Weatherly in Fort Payne. Mrs. Weatherly would take the train to Chattanooga and search through the department stores libraries employee and return home with a satchel full of books.

Her son, Walter Weatherly currently the chairman of the Library's board of directors, tells a story of the time his mother was stopped by a police officer upon returning from Chattanooga with her bulging book satchel. The officer was checking for liquor coming into dry DeKalb County.

"We laughed about it for year's after that," Weatherly relates. "My mother was a strict tee-totaler and never took a drink."

Her eye for books and her love of reading gave the DeKalb County Library its start. According to Wright, many of the books purchased by Mrs. Weatherly are still in circulation. She also initiated the first literacy program in DeKalb County and taught many people to read, winning her the title of "Mother of the Year."

"We want people to use and enjoy their Library," Wright said.

His own enthusiasm for the library extends to his home. "My wife, Ellen, and I are hosting a foreign exchange student this year. As soon as he arrived, we issued him a library card," Wright said.

The library has three branches plus the bookmobile. The bookmobile rotates stops at 32 locations including Mentone.

"Some day soon, I hope there will be a branch library in Mentone. The number of people who use the bookmobile there indicate that there is enough interest for a branch," Wright commented.

If a building were donated in Mentone, a branch library could become a reality.

Another possibility Wright has thought about is to have branch libraries at the camps in the summer.

"With just a corner of a room, we could provide books that the campers could check out to read while they are at camp," Wright said.

Tiger Football Kicks Off At Valley Head

There's a hint of fall in the air and with that our thoughts turn to Tiger football at Valley Head High School. This year's home games will be held at the new football stadium behind the High School. The first home game is against Cedar Bluff, Sept. 27.

The season gets underway Thursday, Sept. 5, at Gaylesville. Two more road games are scheduled with Plainview and Sand Rock before the Tigers inaugurate their recently completed stadium in Valley Head.

This is Coach Jim Kirby's seventh season at Valley Head. The team is "small but enthusiastic," he says. The Tigers lost three seniors from last season and four of their starters will not be returning. Kirby will be looking to his runningbacks Rhett Freeman, Shane Ingram and Wade Phillips to give the team their impetus this year.

Freeman is a senior this year, playing halfback. He and Charles Hammon, a two year starter at guard were named all-county linemen last year. Freeman rushed for 1,060 yards and scored 12 touchdowns last season.

Ingram is a senior playing halfback. Phillips is a returning starter fullback and is a junior.

Junior Charlton Bell will start as quarterback for the Tigers. He was credited with three touchdowns last season.

Over the past ten years Valley Head has a 56-50 record and in 1984 was named state champion. Last year's top player, Anthony Brown graduated and is playing at Livingston.

St. Joseph's Anniversary

St. Joseph's On-The-Mountain Episcopal Church will celebrate its Twentieth Anniversary as a worshipping Christian congregation during the weekend of Oct. 12-13.

Services of worship began at St. Joseph's in October, 1971, under the leadership of the Rev. Graham S. Glover and with the authorization of the Diocese of Alabama.

Founded as a community church to reach inwardly into the hearts and outwardly to the needs of those in the Mentone area, St. Joseph's has experienced steady growth, extended the helping hand of Christ to many and sought to be a beacon of God's love. "Seeking To Be A First Century Church In Today's Twentieth Century World" has recently emerged as the goal for the members and friends of this church-family.

The general public and past members are invited to participate in all aspects of this Twentieth Anniversary Celebration. The highlight event will be the 10:30 a.m. Worship Service and Lunch on the Grounds on Sunday, October at which Bishop Robert O. Miller will be present. The other anniversary events will be publicized by posters around Mentone and the notice board in front of the Church.

and dryer. Appliances like cars are all on the small side but very efficient. We had a little gas stove and the oven settings are not in degrees but numbered one through nine. I had to call for help on that but we did cook a few meals there and all of us liked to go grocery shopping. There is a big supermarket chain "Sainsbury's" that had a store in Burnley, only about 7 miles from our house. You can buy many American food products in England but they are packaged differently and sometimes have different names. This was true for some of our favorite cereals. "Toppas" are Frosted Mini-wheats, "Frosties" are Frosted Flakes and oatmeal is porridge. The breads are all different shapes and sizes, you could buy a loaf of bread cut thin, medium or thick. Ground beef is called minced beef.

The black currant bushes and raspberries bushes at the vicarage were loaded with fruit so I bought some "self-rising flour" and made a few cobblers while we were there.

We heard a variety of English accents and some Gaelic and Welsh on our trip. We had to listen carefully to understand some people but they did not seem to have any trouble understanding us. Television has a lot to do with that, many of the programs on British TV are imports from the U. S. including the Cosby Show and American football telecasts.

All in all, the trip was a great three weeks for our family and one we hope we can repeat someday. Maybe the next time we'll be a little better prepared and leave the travel guides at home.

HAY FOR HORSES — Selecting the right hay for horses is not as simple as selecting hay for cattle. Old Blue must have nutritious, high-quality hay for best results. Since about two-thirds of the protein is contained in the leaf, leafy hays usually have a higher protein content than hays with less leaf or grass type hays. Cutting hay before it becomes overly mature is very important because the overly mature hays will contain more fiber and will be much less digestible.

If the leaves are lost during harvest, the hay will become lower in quality, nutritional value, etc. You don't need weeds, insects and trash in your horse hay. A good rule of thumb as to deciding how much hay to feed your horse is "One pound of hay per 100 pounds of body weight." Thus, a 1,000 pound horse should be fed 10 pounds of good, high-quality hay per day to maintain a normal fill in the digestive tract and to minimize digestive problems. Keep in mind the fact that horses do not like their diets or rations tampered with too often. The same amounts and same type of feed and hay each day is a much better system.

YELLOW JACKETS — I believe we have had more yellow jackets, bumble bees, wasps and hornets this year than we normally have and the time of the year for them to be more aggressive is here. Workers are more likely to sting even when they are away from the nest this time of the year.

During harvest season, you are also more likely to be in areas where you will come in contact with the afore mentioned stinging insects. Harvesting crops, picking fruits and vegetables, bush-hogging pastures, etc., will set the stage for confrontations with these fellows.

There are no insecticides that you can spray that will provide much lasting control. However, most any of the pesticides available to farmers and homeowners will kill these stinging insects if sprayed on the insect and/or his nest. The best time to spray is around sunset or after dark so as to be sure all of the yellow jackets, bumble bees, etc., have returned to the nest. It is hard not to go ahead with destroying the nest immediately after being stung and while you are still hurting. It seems that it helps the pain some to know you have killed the source!

Malathion, Dursban, Vapona, Diazinon, etc., are pesticides that can be purchased at most stores that sell pesticides that will kill these sting insects. You can get a pesticide called "Wasp and Bee Insecticide" that comes in an aerosol can and it will spray for several feet thus allowing you to stay back from the nest and that is a good idea. Remember, stinging insects not only hurt you but they might also make you hurt yourself and lots of folks are extremely allergic to stinging insect bites.

Homeowners, who have some fruit trees, grape or muscadine vines, etc., can count on some confrontations with these insects as fruit harvest continues into the fall. A good, bark-busting winter should help a great deal toward reducing some of the numbers that have built up of lots of insects. I have had more calls about bugs, worms, etc., this year than I can ever remember and as more and more pesticides are removed from the market, the job of controlling insects becomes more difficult.

The pesticides we have available now will do the job if you put it on the insect at the right time but they do not last very long. Many of the pesticides we use to be able to use lasted too long. Some of them are still in the soil and/or fatty tissue of animals and humans. There should be a "Happy Medium" somewhere but I still am convinced that the reason many of the materials have been removed is due to abuse of the user. "Over-Kill" is the term most often used when folks would use too much pesticide to get the job done.

I am referring to folks who have bought pesticides to control insects and take it home and spray or dust with the stuff right out of the bottle rather than to mix it as the label instructed with water. How much did you use? A bottle full in the 2 gallon sprayer! The instructions said to use two tablespoons per gallon so you should have used four tablespoons in the sprayer. Well, I wanted to be sure I used enough! This is not good!
